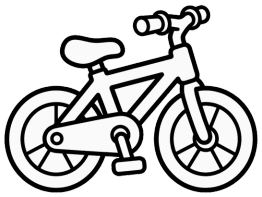
Ben Rides His Bike

Ben got a shiny green bike for his birthday. He could not wait to ride it. But every time he pushed the pedals, the bike tipped over. Ben fell on the grass again and again.



"I will never learn," Ben said, and he kicked the grass. His big sister Tess sat down next to him. "I fell many times too," she said. "Try one more time. I will hold the seat."

Ben got back on the bike. Tess ran next to him, holding the seat. Then she let go, and Ben did not even know it! He rode all the way to the end of the street. Ben learned that trying again is how you learn.
